

Ohio's 37th Division Facing Federal Service Again

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14 — Ohio's famed 37th Division will be mustered into federal service Tuesday for the third time in little more than a generation. Officers and enlisted men of the Buckeye division will drop their status as Ohio National Guard members by answering rollcall at armories scattered over the state. They will be inducted into federal service for 24 months. The division will train at Camp Polk, La. Advance units already have moved there to prepare the camp to receive the full division. In Washington, Maj. Gen. Raymond H. Fleming, chief of the National Guard Bureau, predicted the 37th again will distinguish itself in federal service.

"The fighting 37th covered itself with glory in the Pacific during World War II," General Fleming said. "I know it will meet and pass every test with flying colors." The division was formed in 1917 and in June, 1918, went to France during World War I under Maj. Gen. Charles S. Franks. It reached the front Aug.

4, 1918, at a sector in the Vosges Mountains. Later it participated in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, suffering 3,305 casualties before the campaign ended. When the armistice came it was enlarging a foothold on the bank of the Scheldt river as part of the Ypres-Lys offensive. Demobilized in April 1919, the division was reorganized as part of the Guard in 1920. Another hitch of federal service started on Oct. 15, 1940, with the trip to Camp Shelby, Miss. That hitch was nearly six years long. Before World War II was finished one Ohioan from the division had been awarded the nation's highest award, the Congressional Medal of Honor, and had a ballad written about him. He was Pvt. Rodger Young, an infantryman from Clyde who knocked out a Japanese pillbox and a machinegun holding up an advance and then diverted fire to himself, allowing his comrades to press forward. The rest of the platoon was unharmful—but the private lost his life.

Another medal winner was Pfc. Frank Petrarca of Cleveland, a medical aid man who went to the rescue of wounded men three times under intense enemy fire. Although mortally wounded, he crawled within 20 yards of the Japanese lines on New Georgia, raised himself to his knees and in the words of his citation, "shouted defiance at the enemy, made a last attempt to reach his wounded comrade and fell in glorious death." During World War II, the division fought under Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beighler at New Georgia, Bougainville and in the Philippines. One part of it—the 112th Engineers—was in France. There were 10,070 division casualties in that war.

CARMENT TURNS TO ASHES IN 50 SECONDS

'Exploding Sweaters' Bring Warning From Fire Marshal

"Bargain" sweaters purchased last weekend from peddlers in Circleville may not only cost the purchaser the $3 to $13 he paid for them but also his life as well. Stern warnings have been issued here to persons who may have purchased the garments not to wear them under any circumstances.

The warning came as the result of laboratory tests which show the lustrous garments are highly inflammable—requiring only 50 seconds to disintegrate in flames. Several of the "bargain" sweater sets, consisting of a sleeveless sweater and a sleeved sweater, were purchased from peddlers in the city last weekend. Exact number of the sets sold has not been determined.

Authorities warn that the safest thing to do with the sweaters is to turn them over to law enforcement agencies while a more detailed check is being made. State Fire Marshal Harry J. Callan Monday alerted all members of his division and all fire department chiefs to confiscate all "exploding sweaters" they find throughout Ohio.

Callan said he believed Section 835 of the Ohio code gave him the power to declare the sweaters—which disintegrate in 50 seconds from fire—a fire hazard. Callan and his fire prevention chief, Charles Scott, said they are withholding any direct cease and desist order against individuals until they find out just why the sweaters are so explosive.

Callan said he believed it was a poor stock of rayon. Scott, pointing to west coast tragedies from similar material four or five years ago, said comb rayon is highly inflammable. But, he added, the sweaters now under investigation are especially subject to fire.

"I THINK they are treated with something," said Scott. "I get an oily residue when I burn a piece of such a sweater."

Scott said he was asking Ohio State University to report on the chemical content of the sweaters, and the possibility the sweaters have been treated to produce lustre.

Apparently the sweaters, blocked from other trade channels, have been peddled by individuals from door to door. In Circleville, said Scott, a peddler indicated the sweaters were stolen. They bear the trade names of "Flosmore" and "Embassy."

He said the peddler told customers that a truck driver friend found shipments of the sweaters with eight in a box instead of the usual six. He said the truck driver took the two extras and let the peddler have them to sell. Asking price was $13, cut as low as $3.

Scott talked to Glen Ingman of near Williamsport, one of several persons who purchased the sweater sets in Circleville Saturday, in efforts to locate the man who peddled the inflammable products. Ingman said he bought the set Saturday afternoon from a man who hailed him on the street. He said the man asked $13 for the sweaters, later settled for $7.

Local authorities said the sweaters later may be processed in some way to make them less dangerous. However, until then local purchasers are requested to turn in their "bargain" sweaters for safe-keeping.

Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff of Circleville said that an auto driven by the peddler in his city bore license plates issued to Morris Dorfman of Cincinnati.

Police and fire prevention officials throughout the state worked toward the same goal. The reason?

"Why, these sweaters go up faster than gunpowder or gasoline," said Callan. "They're dangerous."

SEVEN SUCH sweaters have been turned in to Columbus police. They were bought from peddlers. In Dayton, police said one peddler was located who said he had been peddling the sweaters for a year. The peddler had a city license.

Callan explained that if a cease and desist order is issued against an individual or a company, listing the sweaters as fire hazards, and (Continued on Page Two)

AUTO HITS CULVERT ON 56

Ashville Girl, 15, Critical; Two Others Hurt In Crash

A 15-year-old Ashville girl was critically injured and two others seriously hurt in an auto accident near Thatcher at about 9 p. m. Saturday.

She is Pauline Morris, a passenger in an auto operated by Ernest Schwalbach, 27, of Ashville. Miss Morris is reported in fair condition in University hospital, Columbus.

State Highway Patrolman S. J. Hobar and Deputy James Diltz said the accident happened about a mile east of Thatcher on Route 56.

Schwalbach told the lawmen his auto got into the ditch to the right and he was unable to pull it out.

THE AUTO struck a small concrete culvert in the ditch with enough force to drive the right front wheel back through the floorboards and into the front seat. The auto was completely demolished.

Miss Morris suffered severe face lacerations, fractured nose, fractured jaw, fractured right leg, fracture of the frontal bones of the forehead and lacerated right knee and right heel.

Schwalbach suffered a cut upper lip, deep laceration in the roof of his mouth and a lacerated chin. Mildred Nungesser, 20, of Ashville, third person in the demolished auto, suffered a fractured right foot and head lacerations.

All three persons were given emergency treatment in Berger hospital, while Miss Morris later was transferred into the Columbus hospital.

Tax Men Meet To Get Details Of Shakeup

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 — Collectors of internal revenue from all over the country were called into conference here Monday to discuss a reorganization plan that would abolish their jobs.

President Truman has proposed that the offices of the 64 collectors be replaced by a new and smaller setup of district commissioners.

Revenue Commissioner John B. Dunlap called Monday's meeting to discuss what he expected if Congress doesn't kill the reorganization plan.

Mr. Truman's proposal, offered in the wake of a series of Internal Revenue Bureau scandals, would create 25 district revenue commissioners. They would take over not only the work of the 64 present collectors but all other field activities in their districts. The new commissioners would be selected under the civil service system.

The reorganization proposal goes into effect automatically within 60 days after it is formally submitted to Congress, unless either house votes against it.

Carlson Given Top Honors By Danish King

LONDON, Jan. 14 — Capt. Kurt Carlson, hero of the Flying Enterprise saga, received a decoration Monday from the king of his native Denmark. Crowds cheered so loudly the presentation speech could barely be heard.

The stocky little Danish-born hero from Woodbridge, N. J., spoke only one sentence when he received the Order of Dannebrog for sticking to his sinking ship until she went down last Thursday in the stormy Atlantic.

"I don't know how to express my feelings, but please accept from me just a simple seaman's 'thank you,'" Carlson murmured after Count Edvard Reventlow, Danish ambassador to London, pinned the gold cross of the order, one of Denmark's highest, on the skipper's lapel. The award is equivalent to knighthood.

A friend who traveled with Carlson reported:

"It is not yet definite when he will be flying home to America."

Earlier there had been speculation that Carlson might leave by plane Monday night for New York, where he is scheduled to march up Broadway Wednesday in the city's traditional ticker-tape reception for heroes and notables.

7 Slaves Guilty In Bulgar Court

BELGRADE, Jan. 14 — Two Yugoslavs have been sentenced to death and five others given long prison terms in neighboring Bulgaria on spy charges.

Newspaper accounts Sunday said one of the persons condemned to death was Danil Donic, president of the Yugoslav Peoples Front in Bulgaria before Yugoslavia broke with Russia and her satellites. He was charged, among other things, with refusing to remove a picture of Premier Marshal Tito from the front's headquarters.

VERY CLOSE TO LEGAL LIMIT

Deficit Next Year Due To Be Near 15 Billion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 — President Truman's financial chart for the government next year adds up to about a $15 billion deficit.

That would be two to three times bigger than any red ink operation since World War II. It probably would swell the national debt close to or above the present legal limit of $275 billion.

Authorities familiar with the figures but preferring not to be quoted directly told a reporter this is the picture President Truman will present to the election-year Congress in his annual budget message one week from today, barring last minute changes.

1. Government spending in the fiscal year beginning July 1 will reach about $85 billion, up from an estimated $70 billion for the current year and only $45 billion last year.

2. PRESENT TAX laws will bring in about 70 billion next fiscal year, leaving an estimated deficit of approximately $15 billion if conditions remain unchanged.

3. Although the administration for several years has insisted on taxes high enough to balance the budget, Mr. Truman in this election year won't demand excise or income tax boosts to close the gap between outgo and income.

4. Instead, the administration will press for tighter tax enforcement and closing of alleged "loopholes."

If the national economy continues to expand rapidly, and Congress approves the proposed tax reforms, the projected deficit may be reduced to near $10 billion.

5. Large portions of the $85 billion spending program were authorized last year.

Requests for new appropriations will total only about $83 billion—$10 billion less than Mr. Truman sought for the current year.

Figuring probable government spending during the coming year at $80 to $83 billion, the citizens Committee for the Hoover Report said that will mean a minimum of $513 for each man, woman and child in the country, or $2,011 per family.

Pair To Seek Fabulous Loot In Philippines

MANILA, Jan. 14 — Two daring Filipinos soon will launch a hunt for a fabulous store of wartime loot in the mysterious Intramuros, historic walled city in the heart of Manila.

The search is paved with peril for Francisco Dantes and Antonio Nepumoceno.

When American doughboys swarmed into Manila in early 1945, Japanese troops mustered for a last stand in the dense jungle of sturdy buildings and compounds called the Intramuros.

American artillery pounded the walled city to a rubble. Filipino survivors said Japanese overlords fled there with a treasure of money seized from Manila banks and jewels looted throughout the Philippines and buried it in the compound of the Augustinian monks, a block in the eastern section of the Intramuros.

The Intramuros became a giant graveyard and today it still is a graveyard of mines and booby traps and unexploded ammunition.

The Augustinian compound is a rubble which must be cleared stone by stone. Death lurks under every one.

Dantes and Nepumoceno have negotiated several years for the right to hunt this cache. The Augustinian fathers said the could dig—in exchange for 30 per cent of all treasure found.

The government gave its OK—for another 30 per cent.

That leaves 40 per cent of the melon—they don't even know how big it is—for Dantes and Nepumoceno. It may turn into bitter fruit, but they're willing to gamble their lives.

2 Servicemen Killed In Cincy Hotel Blaze

CINCINNATI, Jan. 14 — A Sunday morning fire in Cincinnati's 600-room Hotel Sinton sent frightened guests scurrying for any exit they could find and caused the death of two Air Force privates.

Two firemen and seven persons rooming at the hotel were injured. The fire itself was confined to a linen room on the second floor but smoke filled the upper floors.

Confused and scared by thick smoke billowing from a linen chute, guests on the upper three stories swung down cables and television antenna wires, smashed windows and clambered onto fire escapes.

The two young servicemen were in a room on the top floor of the nine-story building. They fashioned an escape rope out of knotted sheets and were lowering themselves when the rope parted. They plunged almost seven floors.

The dead were Pvt. Harry Franklin Shaeffer, about 21, of Harrisburg, Pa., and Pvt. Raymond G. Hatrack, 18, of Mt. Carmel, Pa.

CLARK WANTS TO AVOID DEBATE

Truman Plans Another Vatican Envoy Choice

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 — President Truman has withdrawn the nomination of Gen. Mark W. Clark as U. S. ambassador to the Vatican, but will name someone else instead.

The White House announced Sunday night the action was taken at the request of the general, obviously upset by the religious controversy that has raged over the issue of a full-fledged envoy to the papal state in Rome.

A terse 45-word White House announcement said Clark's name was being withdrawn at the general's request, and added:

"The President plans to submit another nomination at a later time."

Sources close to the White House said they did not know who Mr. Truman might have in mind for nomination as the first full-fledged U. S. ambassador ever sent to the Vatican, seat of the Catholic church in Rome.

CLARK'S appointment, announced a few hours before Congress adjourned last October, drew fire from both Protestant churches and Congress members. Catholics generally approved.

Clark said the widespread religious criticism is what influenced him to ask Mr. Truman not to nominate him.

It is almost certain that whoever is named by Mr. Truman to the Rome post will face the same opposition.

Florida Minister Receives Threat

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 14 — A Baptist pastor reported two more telephoned threats at his church Sunday night.

Rev. G. E. Hodges, whose secretary said Friday an anonymous caller threatened him and his church with "the same thing xxx as happened in Mims, Fla.," has been given police protection.

Negro leader Harry T. Moore and his wife were injured fatally by a bomb in Mims Christmas night.

Sunday's calls, two minutes apart, were taken by John Douglas, an usher in the church.

UN Proposal Irks Enemy Spokesman

Allies Deny Planes Fly Over Cities In Northeast China

MUNSAN, Jan. 14 — Communist negotiators shouted "lie" in a heated debate over prisoner exchange Monday and claimed Allied planes flew over several cities in Northeast China Sunday.

Allied negotiators on the truce supervision subcommittee switched tactics Monday after failing for three straight days to get an oral statement of the Communist stand on aerial reconstruction.

Instead the UN asked the Reds to agree to restrictions.

The request got a chilly reception. The Reds charged Allied planes flew over Mukden, Wushien and other Chinese communities but did not say any were attacked.

A UN spokesman at Panmunjom said "we assume the charge is similar to a lot of other allegations they have made and completely irrelevant to the meeting."

A FIFTH Air Force spokesman at Seoul denied any Allied planes flew over Northeast China Sunday.

The outburst of Communist temper came after Rear Adm. R. E. Libby explained the Allied voluntary prisoner repatriation plan would be advantageous to the Reds as well as the UN.

"If your statement has been prepared in order to deceive a part of the people of the world who are ignorant, it would be all right," said North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho. "But it would not suit us."

"You had better not say any more that you would do us any favors."

"Should you continue to say so, it would mean that you tell a big lie."

Adm. Libby retorted: "I do not know whether I have personally been called a liar, but I got a strong inference. I shall study the record and make sure."

Both subcommittees agreed to meet again at 9 p. m., EST, Monday.

Libby called on the Reds to "point out any instances where the proposal was deceitful in any way or any way in which it approaches a lie."

"If you can find one," he said, "our side will withdraw it with apologies. If you cannot, you will retract your ill-considered remarks."

Communist negotiators Sunday accused the UN Command of violating the Geneva Convention by insisting prisoners of war be permitted to reject repatriation.

Contracts Change To Help Workers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 — Government contracts are being reshuffled to help communities where civilian production cutbacks have put workers out of jobs.

Defense Production Administrator Manly Fleischmann announced over the weekend government contracts are being shifted about to help hard-hit areas.

The first area to receive such help is Detroit, where automobile production curtailment has caused serious unemployment.

9-Man Panel To Study News For Security

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Decisions on what information federal agencies may release for publication are now in the hands of a new nine-man committee headed by a former Atomic Energy Commission official.

Edward R. Trappnell was named over the weekend to head the group. A former newspaperman, he is on leave as associate director of information services of the AEC.

The committee's job is to aid and police federal agencies in carrying out President Truman's controversial order on news security.

The White House made it clear Saturday that the group should concern itself equally with holding up security news, and seeing that other kinds are promptly cleared.

The committee was ordered to see to it that no "non-security" information is withheld to cover up mistakes," Joseph Short, presidential press secretary, said one purpose of the new setup is to see that more, rather than less, information of a non-security nature is given out.

Represented on the committee are officials of the State, Treasury, Defense and Justice Departments. Although it will rule on information, Short said his office also is still open for complaints.

The presidential security order, issued Sept. 25, was designed to tighten the handling of government information by civilian branches of the government where too much security information was leaking out.

The request got a chilly reception.

The Reds charged Allied planes flew over Mukden, Wushien and other Chinese communities but did not say any were attacked.

A UN spokesman at Panmunjom said "we assume the charge is similar to a lot of other allegations they have made and completely irrelevant to the meeting."

A FIFTH Air Force spokesman at Seoul denied any Allied planes flew over Northeast China Sunday.

The outbreak of Communist temper came after Rear Adm. R. E. Libby explained the Allied voluntary prisoner repatriation plan would be advantageous to the Reds as well as the UN.

"If your statement has been prepared in order to deceive a part of the people of the world who are ignorant, it would be all right," said North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho. "But it would not suit us."

"You had better not say any more that you would do us any favors."

"Should you continue to say so, it would mean that you tell a big lie."

Adm. Libby retorted: "I do not know whether I have personally been called a liar, but I got a strong inference. I shall study the record and make sure."

Both subcommittees agreed to meet again at 9 p. m., EST, Monday.

Libby called on the Reds to "point out any instances where the proposal was deceitful in any way or any way in which it approaches a lie."

"If you can find one," he said, "our side will withdraw it with apologies. If you cannot, you will retract your ill-considered remarks."

Communist negotiators Sunday accused the UN Command of violating the Geneva Convention by insisting prisoners of war be permitted to reject repatriation.

Contracts Change To Help Workers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Government contracts are being reshuffled to help communities where civilian production cutbacks have put workers out of jobs.

Defense Production Administrator Manly Fleischmann announced over the weekend government contracts are being shifted about to help hard-hit areas.

The first area to receive such help is Detroit, where automobile production curtailment has caused serious unemployment.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—A northeast Airliner, trying to land in dense fog by radar, crashed Monday in the East River in the middle of New York City. All 33 passengers and three crewmen were saved.

AUTO HITS CULVERT ON 56

Ashville Girl, 15, Critical; Two Others Hurt In Crash

A 15-year-old Ashville girl was critically injured and two others seriously hurt in an auto accident near Thatcher at about 9 p. m. Saturday.

She is Pauline Morris, a passenger in an auto operated by Ernest Schwalbach, 27, of Ashville. Miss Morris is reported in fair condition in University hospital, Columbus.

State Highway Patrolman S. J. Hobar and Deputy James Diltz said the accident happened about a mile east of Thatcher on Route 56.

Schwalbach told the lawmen his auto got into the ditch to the right and he was unable to pull it out.

THE AUTO struck a small concrete culvert in the ditch with enough force to drive the right front wheel back through the floorboards and into the front seat. The auto was completely demolished.

Miss Morris suffered severe face lacerations, fractured nose, fractured jaw, fractured right leg, fracture of the frontal bones of the forehead and lacerated right knee and right heel.

Schwalbach suffered a cut upper lip, deep laceration in the roof of his mouth and a lacerated chin.

Mildred Nungester, 20, of Ashville, third person in the demolished auto, suffered a fractured right foot and head lacerations.

All three persons were given emergency treatment in Berger hospital, while Miss Morris later was transferred into the Columbus hospital.

Tax Men Meet To Get Details Of Shakeup

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Collectors of internal revenue from all over the country were called into conference here Monday to discuss a reorganization plan that would abolish their jobs.

President Truman has proposed that the offices of the 64 collectors be replaced by a new and smaller setup of district commissioners.

Revenue Commissioner John B. Dunlap called Monday's meeting to discuss what may be expected if Congress doesn't kill the reorganization plan.

Mr. Truman's proposal, offered in the wake of a series of Internal Revenue Bureau scandals, would create 25 district revenue commissioners. They would take over not only the work of the 64 present collectors but all other field activities in their districts. The new commissioners would be selected under the civil service system.

The reorganization proposal goes into effect automatically within 60 days after it is formally submitted to Congress, unless either house votes against it.

SEATTLE, Jan. 14.—Search planes are awaiting clearing weather to resume scanning the storm-tossed North Pacific for the freighter Pennsylvania and her 45-man crew.

Carlsen Given Top Honors By Danish King

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Capt. Kurt Carlsen, hero of the Flying Enterprise saga, received a decoration Monday from the king of his native Denmark. Crowds cheered so loudly the presentation speech could barely be heard.

The stocky little Danish-born hero from Woodbridge, N. J., spoke only one sentence when he received the Order of Dannebrog for sticking to his sinking ship until he went down last Thursday in the stormy Atlantic.

"I don't know how to express my feelings, but please accept from me just a simple seaman's 'thank you,'" Carlsen murmured after Count Eduard Reventlow, Danish ambassador to London, pinned the gold cross of the order, one of Denmark's highest, on the skipper's lapel. The award is equivalent to knighthood.

A friend who traveled with Carlsen reported:

"It is not yet definite when he will be flying home to America."

Earlier there had been speculation that Carlsen might leave by plane Monday night for New York, where he is scheduled to march up Broadway Wednesday in the city's traditional ticker-tape reception for heroes and notables.

7 Slavs Guilty In Bulgar Court

BELGRADE, Jan. 14.—Two Yugoslavs have been sentenced to death and five others given long prison terms in neighboring Bulgaria on spy charges.

Newspaper accounts Sunday said one of the persons condemned to death was Danil Donic, president of the Yugoslav Peoples Front in Bulgaria before Yugoslavia broke with Russia and her satellites. He was charged, among other things, with refusing to remove a picture of Premier Marshal Tito from the front's headquarters.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—The Navy's plan to build a 10-ship fleet of supercarriers, some of them nuclear powered, points up a sharply renewed rhubarb among the services over atomic age weapons.

Involved in varying degrees are all three of the armed forces—Navy, Air Force and Army. And the issues include not only atomic engines, ships, submarines and airplanes, but guided missiles as well.

The Navy Department announced last Aug. 21 award of contract to the Electric Boat Co. for building the atomic submarine hull. The Air Force announced on Sept. 5 a contract with Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp. for building the atomic-powered airplane.

Lloyd O'Hara
Named Ohio's
Top Young Man

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14—(AP)—The Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce Sunday named Lloyd O'Hara, 34-year-old Dayton attorney, as Ohio's "outstanding young man of 1951."

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, vice chief of staff for air, spoke at a banquet ending the Jaycees January state meeting.

Twining said the United States let its air power fall away after World War II, but now is on the way to building an "unquestionably superior" air force.

"If we redouble our efforts and finish the job in time," he said, "the fear that growing Soviet atomic power will cancel our lead in this field and unleash the Red army will be swept away."

"We still do not like to think," he said, "what might have happened all over the world if we had been forced to fight an all-out air war 18 months ago instead of a limited struggle to hold a 100-mile line on the ground in Korea."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—On and off for more than 150 years the politicians of both parties—depending on which was in and which was out—have considered government employees fair game.

When they—the outs, that is—peer through the economic briars they can see large numbers of government employees browsing on the lettuce leaves in federal pastures, and they blaze away.

"Cut down on the bureaucrats and we'll save money," they say. This has been called the shotgun approach, covering more territory than a rifle which is limited to individual targets.

But Harold Stassen, as a college president, could be expected to be more diligent in his use of the language than ordinary politicians who content themselves with calling federal employees "bureaucrats."

In the American College Dictionary, one of the definitions for "bureaucrat" is an "official who works by fixed routine without exercising intelligent judgment." So, while the world is derogatory at least it indicates a federal employee works.

THIS IS A pitfall which Stassen apparently wished to avoid for he recently promised to fire "200,000 loafers" if he's elected President. Since election is 11 months away, it would save money if he'd identify the "loafers" now. At any rate, his statement officially opened the season on government employees.

While the Republicans will be doing the shooting and the Democrats will be on the receiving end, the Democrats themselves can be said to have started the tradition back in 1800 when Thomas Jefferson wanted to be President.

His supporters, the ancestors of the present Democrats, put together the first political platform in American history with a plank aimed at the Federalists who were then in power and can be considered the ancestors of the present Republicans.

This plank called for a "rigorous frugal administration of the government." It promised "resistance . . . to all measures looking to a multiplication of officers and salaries, merely to create partisans and to augment the public debt on the principle of its being a public blessing."

And here is a statement with a more modern and familiar ring: "I do not hesitate to say that the most expensive luxury in America today is the widespread opinion that government is necessarily weak, ignorant, corrupt and contemptible."

"THIS ATTITUDE costs not only millions, but billions of dollars, annually because it poisons the springs of government interest, enthusiasm and service. . . there is throughout the United States a widespread and vigorous propaganda against government service."

This sounds like President Truman but it was written in 1932 by Charles Merriam, a Republican political science educator, when Herbert Hoover was President and the Democrats were banging away at his Republican administration.

More Donations
For Fire Victims

Additional contributions of clothing and food and cash donations totaling $45 have been received for the Lowery lane fire victims, Mayor Ed Aney said Monday.

The families of Garner Alderman and Ray Hashman were left homeless Thursday when a blaze destroyed their residences in Lowery lane.

Aney said that the $45 is being used to purchase groceries for the families.

He repeated his appeal for clothing and furniture, stating that children's clothing is especially needed.

The eight Alderman children and five in the Hashman family are residing with relatives.

Lt. Gov. Nye

Presentation of a distinguished service award key to Circleville's outstanding young man of 1951 will be made by local Jaycees during the birthday and DSA banquet at 6:45 p. m. Tuesday in the First EUB Service Center.

Principal speaker will be Ohio's Lieutenant Governor George D. Nye, of Waverly.

Selection of the city's outstanding young man is being made by a local committee, and award is based on achievement, leadership and service to the community during the calendar year.

Pointing out the significance of the honor, Ed Richardson, distinguished award chairman of the local Junior Chamber of Commerce said "The Circleville Jaycees are making this award because it affords recognition to the young man who has made one of the most outstanding contributions to this community during a critical year in history."

MAYOR ED AMEY earlier proclaimed the week of Jan. 14-21 as "Jaycee Week" in Circleville, to focus attention on young men and the work they are doing in the community.

Fire Marshal
Warns Of Sweaters

The individual or company violates the order, his division then can arrest the person or individual.

New York city officials, on the trail of inflammable sweaters, planned to visit a New York plant which two manufacturers say supplied material for some of the garments.

New York City Fire Marshal Martin Scott said Sunday night he would visit the plant of the Empire State Mills.

Two sweater manufacturers in New York and Cleveland Sunday told officials the Empire State Mills had supplied them with material for their products. Scott called the material "brush rayon."

Scott identified the New York sweater maker as Philip Toffler, owner of the Vic-Ess Manufacturing Co.

CLEVELAND Fire Capt. William E. Miller said Charles Barracato, of the B & A Trading Co., had identified himself as a manufacturer there.

The Cleveland manufacturer was quoted as saying he had been buying the material for four years.

Reports of the combustible sweaters started about a month ago when a young man in Los Angeles lit a cigarette and his new sweater went "poof."

Since then, similar incidents have been reported until the burning sweater fear reached national proportions. Some sweater-wearers "tested" garments they had been wearing for months and saw them turn to ashes in 50 seconds.

However, nuclear engines, with their potentially unlimited range,

If the Air Force intends to have planes that, theoretically, could fly around and around the world, should the Navy also have carriers with range limited only by the food supply and endurance of the crew?

NAVY SECRETARY Dan Kimball said so, in effect, Saturday night: "If world conditions continue as they are, and if no satisfactory settlement is reached by the free world and the forces of Communism, the Navy intends to seek funds to build at least one of these ships—a 60,000-ton flat top like the prototype USS Forrestal—per year for the next 10 years.

"It is my earnest hope that some of the subsequent vessels—if we build them at this rate—will be atomic powered."

Drunken Driver
Fined $250 By Walter Heise

A Chillicothe drunken driver was fined $250 and costs last weekend in the court of South Bloomfield Mayor Walter Heise.

He is Jesse James Boyer, arrested Saturday in South Bloomfield by Marshall Ira Rose.

Heise strengthened the penalty by sentencing the man to 10 days in jail if the fine is not paid within that period. Whenever the fine is paid, within that time, the man will be released.

AUTHORITIES said Boyer was told of the stand of the county against drunken drivers, that of suspending their licenses, and was asked whether he wanted to have his case heard in Heise's court or in common pleas court.

Boyer chose the mayor's court, where licenses may not be revoked or suspended.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—On and off for more than 150 years the politicians of both parties—depending on which was in and which was out—have considered government employees fair game.

When they—the outs, that is—peer through the economic briars they can see large numbers of government employees browsing on the lettuce leaves in federal pastures, and they blaze away.

"Cut down on the bureaucrats and we'll save money," they say. This has been called the shotgun approach, covering more territory than a rifle which is limited to individual targets.

But Harold Stassen, as a college president, could be expected to be more diligent in his use of the language than ordinary politicians who content themselves with calling federal employees "bureaucrats."

In the American College Dictionary, one of the definitions for "bureaucrat" is "an official who works by fixed routine without exercising intelligent judgment." So, while the word is derogatory at least it indicates a federal employee works.

THIS IS A pitfall which Stassen apparently wished to avoid for he recently promised to fire "200,000 loafers" if he's elected President. Since election is 11 months away, it would save money if he'd identify the "loafers" now. At any rate, his statement officially opened the season on government employees.

While the Republicans will be doing the shooting and the Democrats will be on the receiving end, the Democrats themselves can be said to have started the tradition back in 1800 when Thomas Jefferson wanted to be President.

His supporters, the ancestors of the present Democrats, put together the first political platform in American history with a plank aimed at the Federalists who were then in power and can be considered the ancestors of the present Republicans.

This plank called for a "rigorous and frugal administration of the government." It promised "resistance . . . to all measures looking to a multiplication of officers and salaries, merely to create partisans and to augment the public debt on the principle of its being a public blessing."

And here is a statement with a more modern and familiar ring: "I do not hesitate to say that the most expensive luxury in America today is the widespread opinion that government is necessarily weak, ignorant, corrupt and contemptible."

"THIS ATTITUDE costs not only millions, but billions of dollars, annually because it poisons the springs of government interest, enthusiasm and service . . . there is throughout the United States a widespread and vigorous propaganda against government service."

This sounds like President Truman but it was written in 1932 by Charles Merriam, a Republican political science educator, when Herbert Hoover was President and the Democrats were banging away at his Republican administration.

More Donations
For Fire Victims

Additional contributions of clothing and food and cash donations totalling $45 have been received for the Lowery lane fire victims, Mayor Ed Amey said Monday.

The families of Garner Alderman and Ray Hashman were left homeless Thursday when a blaze destroyed their residences in Lowery lane.

Amey said that the $45 is being used to purchase groceries for the families.

He repeated his appeal for clothing and furniture, stating that children's clothing is especially needed.

The eight Alderman children and five in the Hashman family are residing with relatives.

Jaycee Banquet

Presentation of a distinguished service award key to Circleville's outstanding young man of 1951 will be made by local Jaycees during the birthday and DSA banquet at 6:45 p. m. Tuesday in the First EUB Service Center.

Principal speaker will be Ohio's Lieutenant Governor George D. Nye, of Waverly.

Selection of the city's outstanding young man is being made by a local committee, and award is based on achievement, leadership and service to the community during the calendar year.

Pointing out the significance of the honor, Ed Richardson, distinguished award chairman of the local Junior Chamber of Commerce said "The Circleville Jaycees are making this award because it affords recognition to the young man who has made one of the most outstanding contributions to this community during a critical year in history."

MAYOR ED AMEY earlier proclaimed the week of Jan. 14-21 as "Jaycee Week" in Circleville, to focus attention on young men and the work they are doing in the community.

During the past year, the local Jaycees have sponsored many worthwhile projects, among which were the Little Miss Pumpkin Show parade, Junior Golf Tournament and an extensive "Get Out to Vote" campaign.

THE DELEGATE and alternate delegate candidates will be voted upon in the May primary elections.

Sunday's meeting was attended by a number of local Democrat leaders, headed by County Chairman Karl Herrmann. Lt. Gov. George Nye, district central committee, directed the confab.

New York city officials, on the trail of inflammable sweaters, planned to visit a New York plant which two manufacturers say supplied material for some of the garments.

New York City Fire Marshal Martin Scott said Sunday night he would visit the plant of the Empire State Mills.

Two sweater manufacturers in New York and Cleveland Sunday told officials the Empire State Mills had supplied them with material for their products. Scott called the material "brush rayon."

Scott identified the New York sweater maker as Philip Toffler, owner of the Vic-Ess Manufacturing Co.

CLEVELAND Fire Capt. William E. Miller said Charles Barracato, of the B & A Trading Co., had identified himself as a manufacturer there.

The Cleveland manufacturer was quoted as saying he had been buying the material for four years.

Reports of the combustible sweaters started about a month ago when a young man in Los Angeles lit a cigarette and his new sweater went "poof."

Since then, similar incidents have been reported until the burning sweater fear reached national proportions. Some sweater wearers "tested" garments they had been wearing for months and saw them turn to ashes in 50 seconds.

Republicans Due To Make Political Hay

3 Investigations Set Up By Ohio Assembly Are Cited

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14.—(P)—Republicans hope to make political hay from three investigations ordered by the GOP-controlled Ohio Legislature.

An investigation of Communist moves in defense industries and other segments of the state already is underway by the Un-American Activities Commission which begins public hearings Jan. 21.

The Ohio Program Commission, an organization created to deal with state problems, soon will begin inquiries into the highway department and the industrial commission.

State Sen. Roscoe R. Walcott, Republican candidate for governor, is chairman of this commission. He appointed Charles E. MacQuigg, dean of Ohio State University's engineering college and director of the OSU engineering experiment station, to conduct the highway probe. Law Prof. Oliver C. Schroeder Jr. of Western Reserve University in Cleveland heads the industrial commission study.

DEMOCRATS generally opposed all three investigations. Gov. Frank J. Lausche, a Democrat, vetoed bills for the highway and industrial commission inquiries. Republicans got around that by adopting resolutions for the program commission to conduct them.

The program commission already has before it engineering and fiscal studies on a 20-year program costing $5 billion to bring Ohio's roads up to "tolerable standards." The program calls for an extra cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline and sharp increases on truck levies.

Truckers oppose the size of the increases and petroleum interests claim the program can be carried out much cheaper.

Republicans want a sound highway program because of the mounting demands for safe highways to carry the growing volume of traffic.

And they want one good enough to overshadow Lausche's program. He has plugged for a ton-mile tax on trucks to get more highway money. The tax would be levied according to the weight of a truck and the distance it went. Ton-mile programs envision an additional gasoline tax.

Recurring complaints about operation of the industrial commission and the handling of claims from injured workmen brought on the investigation of that department. The situation could produce political fireworks.

The Communist investigation takes on increasing importance as defense contracts pour into this industrially important state.

The old Ohio Anti-Subversives committee took credit for ridding the state of a few top Communists. But investigators of the Un-American Activities Commission intimate that word has gone out for the Reds to step up their infiltration so they will be in vital spots for sabotage if a U. S.-Russian war breaks out.

A by-election is one held between regular elections, usually to fill a vacancy.

Little Woman May Not Know How To Stand

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(P)—If the woman in your home is nervous and irritable, suffers from fatigue or just plain doesn't look good, perhaps it's because of the way she stands.

The Agriculture Department has just published a 24-page illustrated booklet, "Posture in Housework," in which it offers many suggestions for attaining better posture.

"Using your body correctly helps you to get your work done more efficiently," the pamphlet says.

"Good posture in housework will help you to (1) eliminate fatigue, (2) improve your looks and (3) get rid of nervous tensions and irritability."

Illustrations in the booklet show both how and how not to scrub and wax floors, pick up clothes baskets, wash clothes at tubs, move furniture and pick up the baby.

It emphasizes that the correct heights of kitchen tables, cabinets and ironing boards are vital.

BARBERTON, Jan. 14.—(P)—Mayor Theodore L. Parker and six policemen raided a building here Sunday and arrested 37 persons. Chris Shrisant, 48, was charged with operating a place where gambling is permitted. All those arrested were released on bail.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

Here's a girl who wants to have her cake and eat it, too. She is "going steady" with a high school senior, yet wants "a little attention" from other boys.

"I am a freshman in high school," she writes. "I met a senior recently and we seemed to attract each other. After occasional dates, he asked me to wear his school ring and I accepted. Now when I go to our Teen Center, the other boys don't seem as friendly, especially when he is there."

"When I'm there and he isn't around, I feel lost because the boys think they shouldn't pay attention to me. Although I have fun with him and enjoy being with him, I would like a little attention from the others."

Ans.—It would have been easier to have the senior's friendship and enjoy occasional dates with him if you hadn't accepted his ring. Now that you've discovered that wearing a boy's ring usually means no dates with others, it might be more difficult to return the ring and keep his friendship.

All you can do is explain that it was your mistake...that your parents don't want you to "go steady" yet, but you value him as a friend and hope you can still have fun together.

After returning his ring, perhaps a girl friend will help arrange a double date with you so the Teen Center will know you're no longer on the "steady" list. It's better to let them know this way than by discussing your personal affairs with others. Merely make plans for fun and the word will soon get around.

Father Shoots Son During Tiff

CADIZ, Jan. 14.—(P)—John Taylor reported he shot and killed his five year-old son accidentally Sunday while arguing with his wife.

The 36-year-old radio repairman told Sheriff Donald Tope he did not know the .22 caliber pistol was loaded. He had pulled the trigger five times before a bullet ripped through a bedroom door and into the chest of Jerry Taylor who had been awakened by the argument. No formal accusation was filed against the father.

Ex-Priest Off On Honeymoon In Florida

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14.—(P)—Mrs. Chester T. Malek, 21, and her husband, a former Roman Catholic priest, are leaving for a Florida honeymoon.

Mrs. Malek, the former Dolores Dykas, was married Saturday. Her husband, 37, was an assistant priest at Transfiguration church while she was a member there.

On Sept. 18, Malek left the Cleveland Catholic diocese and resigned his assignment as priest.

The two were married in Sacred Heart Church of the Polish National Catholic Church Saturday morning. That night, there was a small reception for relatives and a few friends at the Good Shepard Hall.

There were polkas and the traditional gaiety of a Polish reception.

The Polish church, unlike the Roman Catholic church, permits its priests to marry. Malek expects to be assigned a parish in that church, either here, or in Chicago or Detroit.

CIO Claims Steel Can Hike Wages

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(P)—The CIO United Steel Workers Union says U. S. Steel Corp. could raise wages of its 300,000 workers 50 cents an hour and pay the cost out of its "excess profits."

Otis Brubaker, the union's research director, said that from 1919 to 1939 productivity in the industry—output per man hour—has gone up 167 per cent.

From 1939 through June, 1951, he said, productivity was up 40.5 per cent or in excess of 3 per cent, compounded annually.

An investigation of Communist moves in defense industries and other segments of the state already is underway by the Un-American Activities Commission which begins public hearings Jan. 21.

The Ohio Program Commission, an organization created to deal with state problems, soon will begin inquiries into the highway department and the industrial commission.

State Sen. Roscoe R. Walcott, Republican candidate for governor, is chairman of this commission. He appointed Charles E. MacQuigg, dean of Ohio State University's engineering college and director of the OSU engineering experiment station, to conduct the highway probe. Law Prof. Oliver C. Schroeder Jr. of Western Reserve University in Cleveland heads the industrial commission study.

DEMOCRATS generally opposed all three investigations. Gov. Frank J. Lausche, a Democrat, vetoed bills for the highway and industrial commission inquiries. Republicans got around that by adopting resolutions for the program commission to conduct them.

The program commission already has before it engineering and fiscal studies on a 20-year program costing $5 billion to bring Ohio's roads up to "tolerable standards." The program calls for an extra cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline and sharp increases on truck levies.

Truckers oppose the size of the increases and petroleum interests claim the program can be carried out much cheaper.

Republicans want a sound highway program because of the mounting demands for safe highways to carry the growing volume of traffic.

And they want one good enough to overshadow Lausche's program. He has plugged for a ton-mile tax on trucks to get more highway money. The tax would be levied according to the weight of a truck and the distance it went. Ton-mile programs envision an additional gasoline tax.

Recurring complaints about operation of the industrial commission and the handling of claims from injured workmen brought on the investigation of that department. The situation could produce political fireworks.

The Communist investigation takes on increasing importance as defense contracts pour into this industrially important state.

The old Ohio Anti-Subversives committee took credit for ridding the state of a few top Communists. But investigators of the Un-American Activities Commission intimate that word has gone out for the Reds to step up their infiltration so they will be in vital spots for sabotage if a U. S.-Russian war breaks out.

Little Woman May Not Know How To Stand

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(P)—If the woman in your home is nervous and irritable, suffers from fatigue or just plain doesn't look good, perhaps it's because of the way she stands.

The Agriculture Department has just published a 24-page illustrated booklet, "Posture in Housework," in which it offers many suggestions for attaining better posture.

"Using your body correctly helps you to get your work done more efficiently," the pamphlet says.

"Good posture in housework will help you to (1) eliminate fatigue, (2) improve your looks and (3) get rid of nervous tensions and irritability."

Illustrations in the booklet show both how and how not to scrub and wax floors, pick up clothes baskets, wash clothes at tubs, move furniture and pick up the baby.

It emphasizes that the correct heights of kitchen tables, cabinets and ironing boards are vital.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

Here's a girl who wants to have her cake and eat it, too. She is "going steady" with a high school senior, yet wants "a little attention" from other boys.

"I am a freshman in high school," she writes. "I met a senior recently and we seemed to attract each other. After occasional dates, he asked me to wear his school ring and I accepted. Now when I go to our Teen Center, the other boys don't seem as friendly, especially when he is there."

"When I'm there and he isn't around, I feel lost because the boys think they shouldn't pay attention to me. Although I have fun with him and enjoy being with him, I would like a little attention from the others."

Ans.—It would have been easier to have the senior's friendship and enjoy occasional dates with him if you hadn't accepted his ring. Now that you've discovered that wearing a boy's ring usually means no dates with others, it might be more difficult to return the ring and keep his friendship.

All you can do is explain that it was your mistake. . . that your parents don't want you to "go steady" yet, but you value him as a friend and hope you can still have fun together.

After returning his ring, perhaps a girl friend will help arrange a double date with you so the Teen Center will know you're no longer on the "steady" list. It's better to let them know this way than by discussing your personal affairs with others. Merely make plans for fun and the word will soon get around.

Father Shoots Son During Tiff

CADIZ, Jan. 14.—(P)—John Taylor reported he shot and killed his five-year-old son accidentally Sunday while arguing with his wife.

The 36-year-old radio repairman told Sheriff Donald Tope he did not know the .22 caliber pistol was loaded. He had pulled the trigger five times before a bullet ripped through a bedroom door and into the chest of Jerry Taylor who had been awakened by the argument. No formal accusation was filed against the father.

Ex-Priest Off On Honeymoon In Florida

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14.—(P)—Mrs. Chester T. Malek, 21, and her husband, a former Roman Catholic priest, are leaving for a Florida honeymoon.

Mrs. Malek, the former Dolores Dykas, was married Saturday. Her husband, 37, was an assistant priest at Transfiguration church while she was a member there.

On Sept. 18, Malek left the Cleveland Catholic diocese and resigned his assignment as priest.

The two were married in Sacred Heart Church of the Polish National Catholic Church Saturday morning. That night, there was a small reception for relatives and a few friends at the Good Shepherd Hall.

There were polkas and the traditional gaiety of a Polish reception.

The Polish church, unlike the Roman Catholic church, permits its priests to marry. Malek expects to be assigned a parish in that church, either here, or in Chicago or Detroit.

CIO Claims Steel Can Hike Wages

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(P)—The CIO United Steel Workers Union says U. S. Steel Corp. could raise wages of its 300,000 workers 50 cents an hour and pay the cost out of its "excess profits."

Otis Brubaker, the union's research director, said that from 1919 to 1939 productivity in the industry—output per man hour—has gone up 167 per cent.

From 1939 through June, 1951, he said, productivity was up 40.5 per cent or in excess of 3 per cent, compounded annually.

FLIGHT TOWARD GOLD
THIS WORLD is full of frightened people, none more jumpy than those whose minds constantly are on guarding the integrity of their assets.
A world report shows that private gold hoards in the various nations now sum up to $11 billion with more than half of it in France and the rest of Europe. The private hoarding of gold in the Western hemisphere is estimated at slightly less than $1 billion. This testifies to the fact that money in the New World is far more stable than in the Old. But the trend in the New World is more and more to gold and other stable assets as the purchasing power of money shrinks.
Prof. Sumner H. Slichter, Harvard money expert, says people will accept three to four per cent inflation annually without becoming unduly alarmed, though at three and one-half per cent the price level doubles every 20 years. But beyond this "limit of tolerance," as he calls it, the people become panicky and start converting their shrinking money into goods.
That is happening in Europe today. It is happening in America in a limited way. Money is going into the more stable property values. Even gold, though supposedly illegally possessed by the American citizen, may be had. One may buy gold futures or he may buy the gold itself abroad and deposit it in a foreign bank.
With demand increasing, the price of gold is soaring. America fixes the legal value at $34.915 per ounce but the asking price abroad is as high as $50.
This reach for stable assets will go on as long as money declines in value. It will stop when money is stabilized. Up to now the politicians of most countries won't stabilize or think they can't.

PEAK STEEL PRODUCTION
SEVERAL features of the present steel situation do not seem to make sense. Steel is being produced at an annual rate of approximately 105 million tons, but a shortage is reported.
In 1944, at the peak of production during World War II, total tonnage was 89 million tons. At that time the U.S. was supplying 12 million men under arms, a vast ship-building program was under way, and many tons were being shipped to other nations.
It is inconceivable that demands for steel are greater than they were in 1944, but a shortage is reported—with production nearly 20 per cent higher than in that year.
There is a rumor that government agencies, particularly the military, are receiving allotments greater than their actual current needs and are attempting to build stockpiles in a manner which amounts to hoarding.
Defense Mobilizer Wilson demands fairer distribution, in line with immediate needs. The situation certainly merits official clarification.

Suburbanite Is Today's Daniel Boone
NEW YORK—The Daniel Boone of today is the suburbanite.
Observe America's modern frontier—the suburbs. And it is the only frontier in our country's history that is increasing instead of dwindling.
A suburb is one of those vague populated places you get lost in when you drive out of a big city. Where they come from nobody knows, but every year motorists report more and more of them.
They usually bear such quaint names as Quagmire Heights or Swampville-on-the-Rappahannock. There seems to be no particular reason why they spring up in any one place. There is a report that once a railroad pulling out of a city paused courteously to let a cow across the track. Before the train started up some enterprising real estate dealer wandered by, stuck up a sign saying "Bovine Meadows," and started selling lots to the passengers.
Suburbs vary, but they usually have these things in common:

These Days
George E. Sokolsky's
It is apparent that the British and the French are convinced that the United States is over-fearful of a general war. Both countries are anxious not to be loaded down with devastating war budgets; both countries are unwilling to contribute too heavily, in manpower, to a European army. Both countries suffer from the surprising effectiveness of Soviet propaganda in their countries.
It is often suggested that as they are Europeans, they ought to know, better than we do, whether the Russians are the menace they seem to be.
But what exactly is it that they know? It is that the United States is not withdrawing the divisions of Americans stationed in Europe; that American industry is piling up production, utilizing American man-hours and American raw materials for European defenses; that American airplanes and atom bombs delivered by Americans will be available at whatever the zero hour may be. Two general wars have taught them that they can depend upon the United States, as the President's speech to Congress continues to indicate.
That they know. And what they ask is that we require smaller contributions from them. The British cannot do much because they are busy in Malaya; the French cannot do much because they are busy in French Indo-China. The British require more money because they are having a difficult time keeping up their dollar reserves; the French complain that it cost them as much in Indo-China as they received under the Marshall Plan, so they really got nothing from the United States because it all equalized. In other words, if it cost the United States somewhere in the neighborhood of $25 billion and more than 103,000 casualties in Korea, why not in French Indo-China?
Apparently, that is where we stand with our allies and it is a bit difficult to grasp what General Eisenhower and W. Averell Harriman and all the bright people who handle our future have been doing in Europe. The experts fill pages with lots of words which do not bear analysis, because when results are measured against statements, the sides of the ledger do not balance. It is difficult to formulate in plain language what has happened.
And we are now assured that there will be no war in 1952. That is what Winston Churchill tells us, and it is a happy statement.
But how do we translate those words into action? Do we stop mobilizing our industry for military purposes? Do we take controls off prices, wages, profits and rents? Do we stop exporting our sons and wealth to Europe? Do we discontinue the mobilization of our sons in armies that do not quite know where to go? What precisely does it mean to us to be freed from the fear of a general war?
Mr. Churchill assures us that 1952 is to be "solid," whatever that may mean. If it is as "solid" as Churchill says, we have either been misinformed or we are being misinformed. We could use some facts.
Actually, our peril is that we are being isolated by our allies. They do not want war any more than we do. Probably Stalin does not want war any more than we do.
But again, we have to define war. It is no longer the conventional battlefield at which a field marshal gazes through a spyglass. It is like feeding heroin to an entire nation. It is saddling the richest and most powerful nation with costs of preparation until bankruptcy results not from war but from the preparation for war; liberty is destroyed not by defeat in war but by the controls and regulations set up during the

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE
JOE HUNG UP after telling Anne they could take Kent with them to the New Year's Eve dance at the country club. When he turned he saw his father standing behind him.
"Playing hard to get, is she?" He didn't like to admit it. He said angrily, "Oh, I don't know."
"She is. Why?"
He shrugged. "No reason that I know of. Just—it's her."
"Better be sure about that." "I am sure!"
He flung away—sore at Anne, more sore at his father for voicing his own unadmitted doubt, sorest of all at himself for submitting just now to Anne's request that Donald join them New Year's Eve. In the aftermath of emotion stirred up, he resented the idea. Why should he bother?
And now here was this evening stretching blankly ahead of him. How could he fill it?
He thought of Edna. And he thought, Well, believe me, I'm not going to give that kid much more time to make up her mind about me.
Virginia, going over a stack of paintings for selection of half a dozen for a showing, suddenly let them all clatter back together against the wall and spoke out of the silence. "Philip, my love."
Philip looked up from his book. Sensitive as he was to every shade and nuance of his wife's voice, he read into this light and casual address a serious note.
"Yes?"
"What is the meaning of the word 'friendship' to you?"
"Meaning?" He was playing for time, trying to decipher the origin and significance of the question, although he already had his relationship. Virginia knew that and should have been patient. But he was always so careful about committing himself. It was tiresome. And she, struggling with an alien emotion, wanted a quick answer.
"Yes!" she snapped. "Meaning! How far does one go in it—should one go in it, to be more precise?" He laid aside his book. "If I knew what was on your mind—"
"You know perfectly well what's on my mind." She left her pictures and began roaming about the room with her free mannish stride, hunting for a cigarette here, a match there. Finding both, eventually, she stood before the fireplace, hands thrust into the pockets of her smock and her head thrown back to keep the smoke from getting into her eyes.
"Dr. Atwood?"
"Certainly."
"Am I to imagine—"

THE BEES
When I opened the box their was about ten bees in it. They started to stink me. Then my father through some honey on me. Then they started biting harder. There was a knock on the door. My father refused to answer. Then I found out that they were policemen. They broke down the door. After they put some medicine on sticks they thought that my father was a maniac. "Must we do anything?"
"Mustn't we?" She prowled about, throwing her cigarette into the already littered fireplace and lighting another. "I can hardly face him."
"That's bad. I'm not that way yet."
"With Christmas coming it's somehow worse. I feel it more, I mean. Yet the thought of standing up beside people like the Peebles and singing Glory Be to the Father simply nauseates me."
There was a silence. He considered the glowing embers of his pipe.
"I don't think he expects us to," he said finally. "When he expects us to, then, maybe."
"But he never will."
He conceded that slowly, after a moment's thought. "I guess you're right."
"He'd die sooner than ask us. He'd cut out his tongue—" She broke off once more. "And that's what I'm getting at. Can we do less? Isn't that the whole meaning of—of what we feel for him? It must be reciprocal. We can't always be indebted!"
"I know. I mean—I don't know. I don't know what the meaning is of anything much these days, to tell you the truth." He waved his pipe. "Must we, because we care about him, follow in his footsteps—" It was his turn to stop before her strange look. "Now what's the matter?"
"You sound a trifle biblical. It was a surprise. That's all."
He said nothing. She roamed about the room again uneasily, crashed into her stack of paintings, picked them up, and came back to him with decision on her face.
"Well, I can't. That's all. I can't. It's giving up my identity. My individuality. I can't."
"All right, then, don't. Hold on." He lifted his head, and now his eyes held a dark shining that reflected her rebellion. "It's your life. Our lives. Not his."
She considered that. Then she nodded.
"Forget it," he said.
She nodded again. "Just the same," she told him, "I don't want to be here next Sunday."
She seemed relieved. However, she came back to the subject a little later.

SEVERAL features of the present steel situation do not seem to make sense. Steel is being produced at an annual rate of approximately 105 million tons, but a shortage is reported.

In 1944, at the peak of production during World War II, total tonnage was 89 million tons. At that time the U.S. was supplying 12 million men under arms, a vast ship-building program was under way, and many tons were being shipped to other nations.

It is inconceivable that demands for steel are greater than they were in 1944, but a shortage is reported—with production nearly 20 per cent higher than in that year.

There is a rumor that government agencies, particularly the military, are receiving allotments greater than their actual current needs and are attempting to build stockpiles in a manner which amounts to hoarding.

Defense Mobilizer Wilson demands fairer distribution, in line with immediate needs. The situation certainly merits official clarification.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

It is apparent that the British and the French are convinced that the United States is over-fearful of a general war. Both countries are anxious not to be loaded down with devastating war budgets; both countries are unwilling to contribute too heavily, in manpower, to a European army. Both countries suffer from the surprising effectiveness of Soviet propaganda in their countries.

It is often suggested that as they are Europeans, they ought to know, better than we do, whether the Russians are the menace they seem to be.

But what exactly is it that they know? It is that the United States is not withdrawing the divisions of Americans stationed in Europe; that American industry is piling up production, utilizing American man-hours and American raw materials for European defenses; that American airplanes and atom bombs delivered by Americans will be available at whatever the zero hour may be. Two general wars have taught them that they can depend upon the United States, as the President's speech to Congress continues to indicate.

That they know. And what they ask is that we require smaller contributions from them. The British cannot do much because they are busy in Malaya; the French cannot do much because they are busy in French Indo-China. The British require more money because they are having a difficult time keeping up their dollar reserves; the French complain that it cost them as much in Indo-China as they received under the Marshall Plan, so they really got nothing from the United States because it all equalized. In other words, if it cost the United States somewhere in the neighborhood of $25 billion and more than 103,000 casualties in Korea, why not in French Indo-China?

Apparently, that is where we stand with our allies and it is a bit difficult to grasp what General Eisenhower and W. Averell Harriman and all the bright people who handle our future have been doing in Europe. The experts fill pages with lots of words which do not bear analysis, because when results are measured against statements, the sides of the ledger do not balance. It is difficult to formulate in plain language what has happened.

And we are now assured that there will be no war in 1952. That is what Winston Churchill tells us, and it is a happy statement.

But how do we translate those words into action? Do we stop mobilizing our industry for military purposes? Do we take controls off prices, wages, profits and rents? Do we stop exporting our sons and wealth to Europe? Do we discontinue the mobilization of our sons in armies that do not quite know where to go? What precisely does it mean to us to be freed from the fear of a general war?

Mr. Churchill assures us that 1952 is to be "solid," whatever that may mean. If it is as "solid" as Churchill says, we have either been misinformed or we are being misinformed. We could use some facts.

Actually, our peril is that we are being isolated by our allies. They do not want war any more than we do. Probably Stalin does not want war any more than we do.

But again, we have to define war. It is no longer the conventional battlefield at which a field marshal gazes through a spyglass. It is like feeding heroin to an entire nation. It is saddling the richest and most powerful nation with costs of preparation until bankruptcy results not from war but from the preparation for war; liberty is destroyed not by defeat in war but by the controls and regulations set up during the

JOE HUNG UP after telling Anne they could take Kent with them to the New Year's Eve dance at the country club. When he turned he saw his father standing behind him.

"Playing hard to get, is she?" He didn't like to admit it. He said angrily, "Oh, I don't know."

"She is. Why?" He shrugged. "No reason that I know of. Just—it's her."

"Better be sure about that." "I am sure!"

He flung away—sore at Anne, more sore at his father for voicing his own unadmitted doubt, sorest of all at himself for submitting just now to Anne's request that Donald join them New Year's Eve. In the aftermath of emotion stirred up, he resented the idea. Why should he bother?

And now here was this evening stretching blankly ahead of him. How could he fill it?

He thought of Edna. And he thought, Well, believe me, I'm not going to give that kid much more time to make up her mind about me.

Virginia, going over a stack of paintings for selection of half a dozen for a showing, suddenly let them all clatter back together against the wall and spoke out of the silence. "Philip, my love."

Philip looked up from his book. Sensitive as he was to every shade and nuance of his wife's voice, he read into this light and casual address a serious note.

"Yes?" "What is the meaning of the word 'friendship' to you?"

"Meaning?" He was playing for time, trying to decipher the origin and significance of the question, although he already had his relationship. Virginia knew that and should have been patient. But he was always so careful about committing himself. It was tiresome.

And she, struggling with an alien emotion, wanted a quick answer.

"Yes!" she snapped. "Meaning! How far does one go in it—should one go in it, to be more precise?"

He laid aside his book. "If I knew what was on your mind—"

"You know perfectly well what's on my mind." She left her pictures and began roaming about the room with her free mannish stride, hunting for a cigarette here, a match there. Finding both, eventually, she stood before the fireplace, hands thrust into the pockets of her smock and her head thrown back to keep the smoke from getting into her eyes.

"Dr. Atwood?" "Certainly."

"Am I to imagine—"

She cut him off with a swift, sharp gesture. Then she moved to one of the big chairs opposite his and threw herself in it. "I really need help, Phil. I'm developing a guilt complex."

He stared at her, his brown eyes, his whole heavy face, blank and expressionless. But his nod told her he understood.

"Our friends—our New York friends, I mean—who come out here week after week and drink our drinks and eat out food and, in general, contribute pleasantly, noisily, and amusingly but not in the least constructively to the passage of time—"

"There's hardly a one you care a tinker's damn about."

"Oh, I wouldn't go that far. I like them. I'm very fond of a few of them. I'd miss them if they didn't come. But I wouldn't—"

She paused. "Well, I wouldn't die for them." She paused again. "I wouldn't even cut off my right hand for them." She paused a third time, then finished with conviction. "In fact, I wouldn't give up one jot or tittle of my independence for them."

"But you would for him."

"That's what I don't know."

"You're considering it."

"I'm considering my feeling of guilt. Why should I go to church? I never have since I was 16. I don't like church. I don't want to have anything to do with the ordinary inhabitants of churches, I loathe them."

"En masse, you mean."

"Yes."

"Maybe it's claustrophobia."

"No. Because I can be shut up for hours at a stretch, painting. It's—"

She got up and began roaming about again. "It has something to do with my freedom. I must have my freedom."

"Well, all right. So you have it."

She whirled on him. "But I haven't! Don't you see? That's the point! It's been borne in on me lately that I haven't. I'm not free at all. Not in the way I used to be. I'm tied up in knots thinking I should go and asking myself why and not being able to find a satisfactory answer."

"Why don't you talk it over with him?"

"Never! And distress him by the realization of his unconscious pressure? The very thing he has tried to avoid? My dear—"

She seemed to be given to stopping today, he thought. All her usual easy flow of words had deserted her. He waited.

"I love him," she said.

He picked up his pipe and began slowing to fill it, staring at her fixedly as he did so.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. George Banning and son George of Columbus were dinner guests of Mrs. C. A. Weidon of South Court street.

Pickaway County goal in the national March of Dimes drive was set at $5,000, now getting underway in the city and county.

Karl Mason, Chester Blue, C. J. Schneider and R. P. Lair are among Circleville furniture dealers attending the furniture mart in Chicago.

TEN YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. David S. Dunlap of West Franklin street left by motor for Miami, Fla., where they plan to stay for several weeks.

George P. Hunsicker, one of the founders of the Farmers' National bank of Williamsport, and its president since 1919, has retired.

Miss Evelyn M. Hill of Columbus recently visited with friends in Montgomery, Ala. Miss Hill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hill of near Circleville.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Walker Baughman, Charles Radcliffe, Jacob Hatz, J. R. Wilson, A. C. Cook, Asa Robinson, H. S. Leist and Myron Van Riper were elected to fill the chairs by Modern Woodmen of America.

By HAL BOYLE

that was before the City Council decided to pave the streets and build a new high school.

But your true suburbanite is a hardy soul. He is as much of a frontiersman as Daniel Boone or Kit Carson. They at least had a knife. There is nothing between him and disaster but his wits—and a cold paper mortgage.

He got out of the city because the traffic drove him crazy, and finds that it is as hard to park a car in a suburban shopping district as it is in Times Sq. He yearned for neighborliness, and the guy who moves in next door buys a dog to bite his children.

The suburbanite gamely sticks it out, however, until the mortgage is paid and the kids reared. Then he sells his house to a new frontiersman, and tells his wife: "Come on, honey, let's move back to the city—and start living again."

And after that if you mention fresh air to him he gets violently ill, for when a man retires from the frontier he leaves it forever.

Suburbanite Is Today's Daniel Boone

NEW YORK—If—The Daniel Boone of today is the suburbanite.

Observe America's modern frontier—the suburbs. And it is the only frontier in our country's history that is increasing instead of dwindling.

A suburb is one of those vague populated places you get lost in when you drive out of a big city. Where they come from nobody knows, but every year motorists report more and more of them.

They usually bear such quaint names as Quagmire Heights or Swampville-on-the-Rappahanock. There seems to be no particular reason why they spring up in any one place. There is a report that once a railroad pulling out of a city paused courteously to let a cow across the track. Before the train started up some enterprising real estate dealer wandered by, stuck up a sign saying "Bovine Meadows," and started selling lots to the passengers.

Suburbs vary, but they usually have these things in common:

An antique store, two liquor stores, four real estate offices, one taxi you can never get when you need it, and a railroad station that closes on cold nights whenever the ticket seller sees a lone wayfarer who wants to come in and get warm.

You also usually find a fresh cemetery in an older suburb because the natives don't like the idea of having the newcomers buried beside their own vanished kin. They figure to live with these Johnny-come-latelys—but why should a real oldtimer have to share his graveyard, too?

The average suburbanite becomes one because he feels "the city is no place to raise children." So he buys a brightly painted home in the suburbs too big for a dollhouse and too small to shelter a St. Bernard dog.

Here he and his happy swarming brood live in the same kind of intimacy and harmony visible in a wrestling ring.

He becomes a pilgrim between his home in the hinterland and his desk in the city, and he is a prisoner of the railroad that links them. There are two big events in his year—the days when they change the timetables and provide him with new reading matter.

The suburbanite has all the pains of a farmer and few of the joys of the urban dweller. In summer he comes to work because of the overborne with poison ivy, complaining, "A new bug ruined my garden last night. I fed DDT to the bugs and they just cried for more."

Winter strikes him with a peculiar virulence. He finds that the only thing free in the suburbs is air, and sometimes there is too much of it after October. But when he staggers into work on January mornings, pinching his frost-bitten nose and ears, he only mutters manfully:

"My, the fresh air was like wine today but where I live."

Frozen wine!

Bad weather "snows him in, debt snows him under. He thought taxes would be low when he moved to the suburbs, but

Home Demonstration Activities For 1951 Are Summarized By Agent

Next Year's Projects Planned

A summary of women's extension activities for Pickaway County in 1951, directed by Miss Genevieve Alley, home demonstration agent, adds up to a valuable contribution to many phases of community good living. According to Miss Alley: "Pickaway County Home Demonstration program is planned and carried out under the guidance of the General Extension Advisory Committee and the Home Demonstration Council. The principal fields of work during the past year have been clothing, home furnishings, and home management.

"Even though incomes are showing a decline, farm families are continuing to improve their standard of living by remodeling or building. Extension assistance has ranged from furnishing helpful blueprints to drawing blueprints.

"Emphasis on consumer information in the overall Extension program can be traced from youth work through adult work. This was brought about through the need made apparent in a survey conducted by the General Extension Advisory Committee.

"Throughout the history of home demonstration work in Pickaway County, clothing has been the field of major emphasis. The Home Demonstration Council has seen the need for shifting some of the emphasis in this program in order to meet the needs and interests of more people. Rugs, selection, care, and construction; slip cover making; home crafts; were stressed in home furnishings. Home remodeling, purchase and use of household equipment were the points of principal emphasis in home management. Contributing to the educational phase of the program of various organizations in Pickaway County has been established by the General Extension Advisory Committee as an important part of the contribution that Extension Agents can make to the overall county program," she declared.

A breakdown of statistics compiled by Miss Alley, reveals that there are 26 Home Council members and 15 community groups which held a total of 92 project meetings during last year.

Number of meetings and the projects studied were: Rugs, selection, care and construction, 43; slip cover making, 8; home crafts, 21; tailoring, 17 and sewing machine clinics, 3.

Forty-three homemakers attended Woman's Camp last Summer held in Tar Hollow and 630 copies of "News Notes"—quarterly publication on consumer information—were sent to women in the county.

Families assisted with clothing problems total 850; 400 families were assisted with home management problems; home furnishings problems were discussed with 550 families and 630 families were given advice on food problems.

In addition to these many activities, Miss Alley made 26 talks before organized groups.

Working sessions for 1952 as recently announced in "News Notes" will include the following projects: "Sewing Machine Clinics," where members will learn to clean, adjust and do minor repairs on their machines; "Getting the Most Out of Your Sewing Machine;" "Know Pickaway County;" "What We Should Do As Projects for Next Winter;" "Selection and Care of Upholstered Furniture;" and "Problems Involved in Re-upholstery."

Paul Brown Bitter After Loss To 'Laughing Boy's' Gridders

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14—(P)—Paul Brown of Cleveland, pro football's poked-faced perfectionist, apparently has met his match in a belly-laughing giant named Joe Stydahar. Until next season, anyway.

First it was the Stydahar-coached Los Angeles Rams who beat Brown's Clevelanders for the National Football League championship.

Last Saturday it was Stydahar's National Conference All-Stars who trounced Brown's Americans, 30-13, in the second annual Pro Bowl game.

It was the first time Brown has ever suffered two defeats in a row and it posed a new and puzzling situation for a man who has tasted few setbacks, indeed, in six highly successful years of coaching. Was Brown bitter? He was.

With rain water trickling from his hat, he stood alone for a moment in the Los Angeles Coliseum mud and dourly contemplated his predicament before sloshing over to Stydahar's bench.

"Congratulations!" Brown remarked. "You were good. We stunk up the joint."

Stydahar, more jovial than ever, attributed his triumph to the gift of laughter and a sense that the world is mad.

"The happiest team won," said "Laughing Boy." "Our players acted as if they enjoyed it."

Quarterback Otto Graham, asked what the Nationals had that the Americans lacked, merrily replied: "More points."

Local Cage Teams Face 15 Tests This Week; Monroe Retains Lead

Fifteen basketball games are promised this week for Pickaway County basketball fans.

Heading the list of games is a makeup tilt between undefeated Monroe Township's Indians and challenging Pickaway Pirates, due Monday night in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Other Monday makeups call for Atlanta's Red Raiders to invade Scioto's Buffalos; while neighboring Stoutsville Indians will travel to Liberty Union.

Tuesday's schedule calls for a makeup game with Walnut at Ashville, along with regularly scheduled Darby at Mt. Sterling; Jackson at Laurelville; Monroe at Fairfield; Groveport at Pickaway; and Good Hope at Williamsport.

Wednesday's schedule calls for encounters between Ashville at Stoutsville; Atlanta at Walnut; Darby at Williamsport; Jackson at New Holland; Monroe at Salt Creek; and Pickaway at Columbus University.

Unbeaten Monroe still paces the Pickaway County League standings with six victories, while Pickaway and Darby are tied for second place with five wins in six starts for the season.

A win by Pickaway Monday in its makeup tilt with Monroe would throw the county standings into a three way tie, Monroe, Pickaway and Darby.

Pickaway advanced a notch in the standings last Friday with a thrill-bound 57-56 win at Ashville. Atlanta also bettered itself last Friday night by beating Williamsport by a 49-40 count.

Complete standings of the county league teams are as follows:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Monroe	6	0	1.000
Darby	5	1	.833
Pickaway	5	1	.833
New Holland	4	1	.800
Ashville	4	2	.667
Jackson	3	4	.429
Williamsport	3	4	.429
Atlanta	2	4	.333
Walnut	1	4	.200
Salt Creek	1	4	.200
Scioto	0	6	.000

Indiana Hoping To Top Illinois

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—(P)—Indiana's title hopes, jolted by two successive defeats, can blaze anew Monday night if the Hoosiers knock off undefeated Illinois.

Illinois and Iowa, both with 10-game winning streaks, are among five major unbeaten teams in the nation.

Michigan is at Minnesota, Ohio State at Purdue and Northwestern at Iowa Monday night. On Saturday, Indiana invades Purdue, Michigan State goes to Michigan, Wisconsin to Northwestern and Minnesota to Iowa. Michigan State is host to Notre Dame Tuesday.

Tiger Mentor Tom Bennett Monday said the Hamilton game was cancelled because that school had made other arrangements for the evening.

Bennett said Hamilton apparently assumed the game was off when it played here during the Christmas vacation in a holiday carnival.

Next game for the Tigers will be Friday night, when they travel to Bexley.

The cancellation will give the locals a chance to better their ever-improving court play. Starting the season with jumbled individual play, the CHSERS in the last few games have exhibited a better team spirit.

That Improvement, along with a screwed down defensive set-up, netted the locals a 64-52 win over Wilmington last Friday night, their second victory in 10 starts.

In that game, fancy shooting by Dud Morris and Jim Cook and a play-making effort by Don Olney, Mike Brown and Jerry Pritchard paid off.

Cincinnati's reserve team will be seeking its fourth win in five starts in Friday's road trip to Bexley.

Dog License Deadline Set

Pickaway County dog owners have until next weekend to purchase licenses for their pets without a penalty.

After next Sunday, the licenses will cost $3 to persons who failed to beat the deadline. They now sell at $2 each, regardless of sex of the animal.

County Auditor Fred Tipton Monday said only about 1,500 of the tags have been sold here to date. Almost 3,500 were sold in the county last year.

PREXIES TO BE IGNORED

And Now Colleges Plan Own Cleanup Program

CINCINNATI, Jan. 14—(P)—The word "cleanup," which has been applied to government the last several months, is being added to the nation's collegiate dictionaries.

College athletic programs are the new target, but the cleanup in higher echelons of learning is to be handled with a delicate whisk-broom, not a pick-ax.

Out of the mainstream of resolutions, counter-resolutions and academic double-talk marking the 46th National Collegiate Athletic Association convention last week, these facts emerged crystal-clear:

1. The NCAA plans to attack the evils in its sports setup in a calculated, unhystrical manner, ignoring the prod of a special presidents committee to go in and chop away. A year's study was prescribed for such issues as bowl games and subsidization practices.
2. All factions—the NAA presidents and football coaches—found one solid starting point for the cleanup program. That is a national standard of entrance requirements and strict university control of all athletic policies.
3. THE NCAA emerged from the crisis stronger than ever before, strengthened by the support of the dissident southern bloc which a year ago perpetrated the death of the sanity code. The south and southwest backed the NCAA solidly in its refusal to be spurred into drastic action by the presidents' committee.

The annual convention, which closed Saturday, followed the script all the way. There was no drastic action, little fireworks and a general attitude of, "well, let's study this thing out first."

The presidents were rebuffed on two main issues in the 10-point deemphasis program they have recommended to the American Council on Education. They were bowl games and spring practice.

The convention voted to make an exhaustive study of bowls and other post-season tournaments and determine just how much they might undermine athletics. A special committee will make the survey and report to the convention next year.

Meanwhile, the 1953 bowl games are on, as of the moment. In the NCAA resolution which was adopted, colleges were told they should not make bowl commitments after Jan. 2, 1953. That leaves Jan. 1 open.

ON OUT-OF-season practice, the delegates beat down a proposal to ban it and instead adopted an amendment limiting spring football drills to 20 sessions over a 30-day period and basketball to 20 sessions in 24 days.

Dr. John A. Hannah's presidents committee had asked that bowl games and out-of-season practice be abolished.

Nevertheless, the NCAA fell solidly behind the presidents in establishing entrance requirements and scholastic standards for athletes and in placing the administration of scholarships and grants-in-aid under strict institutional control.

CENTRAL STATE LEADING PACK

College Cage Standings Destined For Shakeup

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14.—Ohio's college basketball standings are due for a shaking up this week as the Buckeye boys offer a 48-game program.

Central State, leading the pack with seven straight, and the realm's lone clean record, will be busy as a bee.

The Greene Counties entertain Kentucky State Monday night, Bluffton Tuesday and Wilmington Saturday. Then they sandwich in a Thursday trip to Jefferson City, Mo., to play Lincoln.

The top game in the torrid Ohio Conference race comes up Monday night in Springfield where Ohio Wesleyan puts its four-game winning streak on the block against Wittenberg (4-1). Wesleyan rides the crest following Akron's forfeiture of seven games last week due to the use of ineligible players. The Zips trimmed Wesleyan 87-75 on Dec. 29, but now it's in the books as a 2-0 win for the Bishops. Heidelberg and Oberlin also picked up 2-0 wins via that same route from Akron in the conference.

THREE AKRON victories over out-of-state foes were erased along with the others, and the transfer gave foreign foes a 62-57 edge over Ohio teams for the season. Ohio teams won 12 of 18 last week, and

Demaret Collects Crosby Top Prize

PEBBLE BEACH Calif., Jan. 14.—Bing Crosby's national amateur golf tournament, a $10,000 event with a million dollar cast, goes down in sports history as the battle of the big wind, torrential rains and a fruitless struggle with rain.

Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., won the event Sunday with a 36-hole total of 145, one over par.

The victory was worth $2,000. Demaret pocketed an additional $500 by finishing third in the pro-amateur competition with Comedian Bob Hope. They scored a best ball of 70-64-134.

Joe Louis Angry As Jim Crow Rule Curbs Play In PGA Meet

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 14.—An angry Joe Louis is at war with the Professional Golfers Association over its rule prohibiting him and other Negroes from tournament play.

The long-standing PGA rule against non-white players fell on Louis when he arrived Sunday for this week's San Diego Open.

Local tournament officials said the PGA rule, which they declared they had learned about only two days ago, would bar the former heavyweight boxing champion and two other Negroes—Bill Spiller and Eural Clark, Los Angeles professionals.

Paul Bixler Quits Post At Colgate

HAMILTON, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Paul Bixler is busy hunting for a new job following his resignation as head football coach at Colgate.

Pixler, former top man at Ohio State, quit his post at Colgate Sunday because a new contract offer contained stipulations he said "were impracticable and unworkable." He did not explain.

Bixler's 1951 Colgate eleven won four and lost five games. The 1950 team had a record of five wins and three losses.

Bixler first went to Colgate in 1939 as head basketball and assistant football coach. In 1941 he was hired by Ohio State and later became the Buckeyes' head grid coach. He returned to Colgate in 1947.

Marion Lad Sinks 22 Field Goals

He made 22 field goals for 44 points as his team defeated Columbus Holy Family 85-23.

Heat Claimed Big Problem In Jet Motors

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14.—Fast-er, more economical jet airplanes could be built if a more heat-resistant substance for engine parts could be found.

Dr. Clyde Williams, director of Battelle Memorial Institute, an industrial research organization, said scientists have developed fuses that burn at 5,000 degrees fahrenheit.

But, he said, the metal alloys now used in engine parts won't keep their shape at that temperature. The metals now used are loys of nickel, chromium, cobalt, tungsten, molybdenum and other metals.

Williams said present jet engines operate at about 1,800 degrees fahrenheit, but higher temperatures give greater efficiency.

"At relatively low temperatures motors burn a lot of fuel," Williams said. "Every time you raise the temperature several hundred degrees you get a very substantial saving in fuel."

To find plentiful substances which resist 5,000 degree temperatures, scientists are studying other substances, such as carbon, silicon and metal ceramic mixtures, Williams said.

Ag Agency's Controversial Plan Underway

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The Agriculture Department is putting into effect immediately portions of its controversial program to improve the department's services to farmers.

Some farm groups, particularly the American Farm Bureau Federation, say the department is trying to tighten controls over agriculture.

The department has instructed its field officers and local farmer committees to carry out recommendations for helping farmers obtain government aid. One recommendation is designed to simplify procedures for getting price support loans.

The recommendations came from a county-by-county survey conducted by the department last summer. A study of the recommendations by a department committee, expected to be made public next month, is expected to shape possible congressional changes in farm policies and legislation.

Dr. Goodman used the same type plastic used for false teeth and has hopes for the process. He says it could be used on casts for humans. Cuddles got bopped by a truck. (International)

Heat Claimed Big Problem In Jet Motors

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14.—Fast-er, more economical jet airplanes could be built if a more heat-resistant substance for engine parts could be found.

Dr. Clyde Williams, director of Battelle Memorial Institute, an industrial research organization, said scientists have developed fuses that burn at 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

But, he said, the metal alloys now used in engine parts won't keep their shape at that temperature. The metals now used are alloys of nickel, chromium, cobalt, tungsten, molybdenum and other metals.

Williams said present jet engines operate at about 1,600 degrees Fahrenheit, but higher temperatures give greater efficiency.

"At relatively low temperatures motors burn a lot of fuel," Williams said. "Every time you raise the temperature several hundred degrees you get a very substantial saving in fuel."

To find plentiful substances which resist 5,000 degree temperatures, scientists are studying other substances, such as carbon, silicon and metal ceramic mixtures, Williams said.
